CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, July 4 -- Sentiment on wheat favors the side of the market more than at any time is weeks. The strength shown at Liverpool it the situation and in addition to the adition to be garden in the big English market, the concensus of a among conservative speculators in the trade it any change in the spring wheat prospects be for the worse.

The outlook in the States where the greater part of the spring wheat is growing is said to be flattering, but we were never known to pass a season without a crop scare or two and a possible runaway market in consequence.

The best authorities in the spring wheat country say that the outlook could hardly be improved upon; but they are all cautious about putting out short lines in a liberal way. They feel that a change must come over conditions.

The weather for the development of the growing come has been due to the development of the growing that he had been due to the state of the state of the state of the growing that he weather for the development of the growing that he weather for the development of the growing that he weather for the development of the growing that he weather for the development of the growing that he weather for the development of the growing that he weather that he was the state of the state
